A former pupil and captain of the prestigious Dollar Academy, Graeme Morrison studied physiology and sports science at Glasgow University. After joining Glasgow Warriors in 2003 Graeme has been a regular fixture in the side's backline. Graeme played in both Tests on Scotland's ground-breaking 2010 summer tour of Argentina and his leadership of the midfield defensive line was a key factor in the Scots 2-0 Test series triumph - the first time a series had been won in 50 years of touring. Graeme's efforts were rewarded by representing his Country twice during the 2011 World Cup with his focus now turning to the 2012 6 Nations

Off the pitch Graeme is an articulate and eloquent guy, he speaks fantastically well which is complimented by his sharp sense of humour and is highly respected within Scottish Rugby.
