Graham, also known as 'wig' for his ears, has had a successful rugby career as a player gaining 298 caps for Leicester and representing his country on numerous occasions. A very funny character with endless stories to tell from his playing days, Rowntree can recall upon many experiences from various tours with England and the British and Irish Lions. Graham will be looking to add to his triumphs with England in the 2012 RBS 6 Nations. What is special about Graham is that he can draw from the perspective of player and coach for his club, for England and for the Lions. A very rare quality.
